In July 2014, Israel began an assault on Gaza, which lasted 51 days and cost the lives of more than 2,200 Palestinians, including 500 children.

Today the siege continues, Israel still refuses to allow building materials into Gaza meaning not a single house has been rebuilt. Families are forced to live among the rubble of their homes, without electricity or running water and aid agencies report malnutrition is spreading.

Israel is collectively punishing the 1.8 million people who live in Gaza refusing to allow in basic building materials, and denying them access to food, water, fuel and medicine.
